

Creative activity for children and young people

As well as the many new activities on our own website, there are lots of other wonderful visual art resources for children and young people available online. Here are just a few that we think you might like:

64 Million Artists

64 Million Artists are sharing free creative activities that are suitable for individuals and groups and use easy to find materials. They have weekly and monthly challenges, as well as bite size ideas and how-to videos.

BALTIC

While they are closed, BALTIC has moved their free weekly drop-in activity online. They are releasing a 'Meet & Make' video on their YouTube channel each weekend, so that you can join in virtually from home. Have a go at Pop-up Forests, Chimera Collages, Leaping Animals and more!

The British Museum

There are lots of ways to explore all of the wonderful treasures inside The British Museum from home, including virtual tours of over 60 galleries, free online learning resources, behind the scenes podcasts and audio tours.

Firstsite

Firstsite's 'Art is where the home is' programme features lots of activities to do at home. The activities are designed for everyone to have a go at, but are especially suitable for children and young people and their families. There are 'Create at Home' step-by-step activities, as well as downloadable resource packs created by some of the world's best-known artists.

Fun Palaces

Fun Palaces have created 'Tiny Revolutions of Connection' – ideas to pass the time more creatively. They have both online and offline activities that can be done in isolation or outside, some using little or no materials. Examples include 'Little Boxes of Friendship', recycled paper bunting, learning to count in another language and making a nature rainbow.

TATE kids

Play, make and explore with loads of activities on the Tate Kids website. Learn how to make Pop Art like Andy Warhol, make a playdough sculpture, download colouring sheets and even make an artwork out of yourself! Explore all of the make and do activities, games, quizzes and videos on the Tate Kids website.

Our artists, musicians, film-makers and writers are busy creating lots of new activities, so keep in touch to find out more. For regular updates follow:
