Imagine a bunch of animals came to your house and threw rubbish all over your home. You wouldn't like it (I know I certainly wouldn't). Now imagine that you spent all day clearing up the rubbish, so you could have a nice clean home to live in, but the very next day, the animals came back and left more rubbish at your house. And they did the same the next day.

That's what humans do to the animals that live in the ocean.

Ollie is an octopus.

He lives in the ocean and likes to live in a clean home.
Ollie is tired of humans polluting his home with their plastic.

One day, Ollie decides he can't take any more and decides to get his friends together and protest! He holds a meeting and invites all of his ocean friends.

Wilbur the whale was there, next to Steve the Stingray and Josephine the jelly fish. All of the sea creatures were there. They all wanted a clean home and they all wanted to tell the humans to stop polluting their world.

They made a good start to their protest chant, but need your help finishing it! Fill in the gaps on the next page to help the sea creatures.

We would love to see your protests – ask an adult to email your ideas to sregan@thepoint.org.uk or they can tag us in the social media below (by sharing your content with us, you agree to us using your content on social media):

Sea Creature Protest!

No more plastic!
No more plastic!
Keep the seas clean!
You know what we mean!

In the sea where we live
We've found _____ and _____ (fill in plastic items that might be found in the ocean) _____ and _____
We don't want it any more!

Josephine the jellyfish found a _____ in her home
And a _____ in her garden
And _____ at her neighbours.
We don't want it any more!

Wilbur the whale had a _____ round his tail
And a _____ in his blow hole
And a _____ round his fin
We don't want it any more!

Steve the stingray swam into a _____ this morning
And a _____ last night
And _____ last week
We don't want it any more!

No more plastic!
No more plastic!
Keep the seas clean!
You know what we mean!
